ARMS ACADEMY

SHELBURNE FALLS, MASSACHUSETTS

FOOTSTEPS . . . Throughout the years thousands of footsteps have echoed down our halls and classrooms. They have left their marks on the faded floors and in the unique scuffed-out hollows of the staircase. Yet these physical reminders are not all they have left. These footsteps were made by people: students of Arms Academy who have come and gone, taking with them the priceless memories of other days here, and leaving a part of themselves which has served greatly to enrich our school. These footsteps are not only out of the past. We are making our own footsteps to serve as reminders of our own years at Arms—the Freshman Reception, football games, that precious "A" in a subject, and finally, Graduation. Arms will soon be behind us, but our footsteps will remain for those who follow them on and on and on . . .

DEDICATION

Shelburne Historical Society

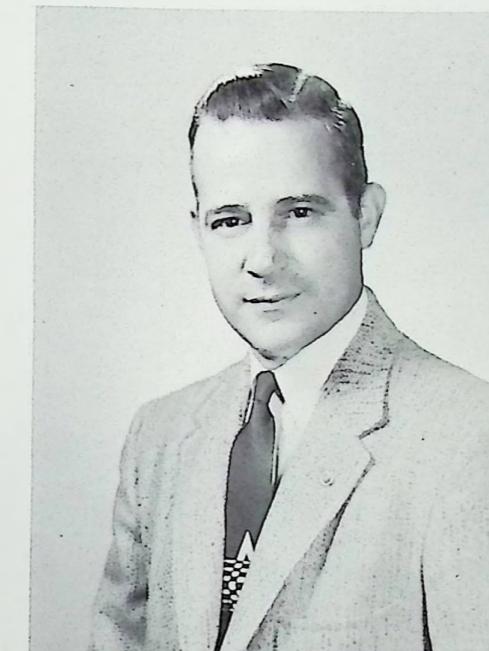

Because you have made our Senior Play a success, because you have displayed an open mind and have helped us to develop the same, because you have encouraged us to question and, by our own questioning, to become more sure of our own convictions, and, most of all, because you have invested time and interest in our individual problems and have shown concern for all, we, the Class of 1966, proudly dedicate the 1966 ARMS STUDENT, to you, PAUL H. LEVY.

Shelburne Historical Society IN MEMORIAM

FACULTY

As we progress through high school, we are forming patterns for our later lives; these patterns, however, are not formed without guidance from those who are in positions to teach us. Our faculty, in such a position, shows us, through its members' own footsteps and those of the people whose ideas they teach, something of a fundamental purpose and goal for our lives.

With grateful recognition for his many years of service to the school and to the community, and with a deep sense of loss, we dedicate this page to the memory of Edmund P. Palmeri.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

To the Class of 1966:

"Each of you has left his imprint on Arms Academy and now you will go forth to leave your imprint on the world. As you proceed through life you will find that knowledge is the most important factor. It is hoped that the knowledge obtained at Arms will help you to leave the world a most worthy remembrance of you."

SCHOOL COMMITTEE AND SUPERINTENDENT

The school committee is to Arms Academy as the board of directors is to a large corporation. This committee sets the policies that are administered by the superintendent. Thus from the office on Bridge Street come the directives which establish the curriculum of Arms Academy.

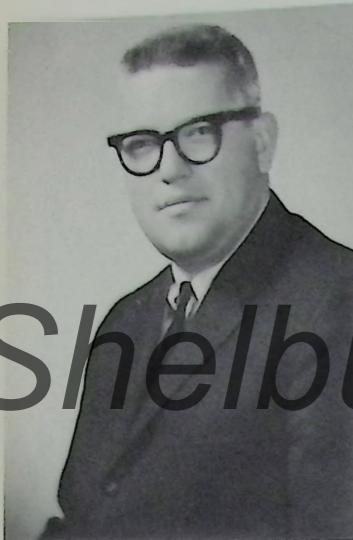

Superintendent Roy A. Bither, Jr.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE: John Shultz, Michael Smith, Mr. Bither. Missing: Richard Ward.

KITCHEN HELP, MRS. PEG SPENCER AND MRS. DORIS CROFTON, STOP IN THE MIDST OF THEIR WORK.

School is usually thought of in terms of teachers and students, but it really couldn't be a school without the faithful service of those who aren't so much in the limelight. In the office are Mrs. Sumner and Mrs. Abbott, busily typing or filing records. And what would we do without their willingness to let us use the office phone, or to look up all kinds of information? Despite rather difficult conditions, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Spencer, and Mrs. Crofton are still able to give us good cafeteria cuisine. But this is not all. If the chemistry class needs $C_{12}H_{22}O_{11}$ (sugar) or H_2O (frozen), the cafeteria is the place to go. Last, but never least, are Mr. Jenks and Mr. Burnap, who patiently keep the buildings in order and take care of minor mishaps and emergencies around the school. The work of these people, however, is not as important as the spirit in which it is done. The students of Arms have real friends in these helpers and are indebted to them for their service.

SENIORS

Behind us and before us, footsteps . . . memories stretching from our past years of fun and learning at Arms . . . ahead of us the paths of those gone before . . . As we stand in the doorway to the future, we think of the footsteps we have made and will make, symbols of the paths of our lives . . . for the future is only a step away.

As our four years at Arms draw to an end, we, the Class of 1966, now eagerly await the future, using these past years as the foundation upon which we will build our lives. There are many milestones large and small —yelling "Arms, rah, rah, seniors!" at assemblies, a special privilege; Booster Day, with our very own queen; Senior Play, a truly professional performance, the Christmas Prom, a "fantasy" to remember; P.O.D. class, an experiment in thinking; and, finally, graduation, the close of the happiest and saddest years of our lives. Our message to the classes who will follow us is one of encouragement and hope for the future.

ANITA CALL ON LAP OF BOOSTER DAY CHUM.

CAN'T SAY THE SENIORS AREN'T FRIENDLY!

UNDERCLASSMEN

They are not quite seniors—some of them are quite a long way from that last year—but they are still a vital part of Arms. They are creating their own footsteps by planning such things as the Freshman Class Float, the Sophomore Assembly, or the Junior Prom. We seniors have been a guiding light for them, and they will follow in many of our footsteps. However, each class will create its own to add to the unceasing parade marching through time.

JUNIOR CLASS

Suddenly the lowly sophomores have become mighty juniors! With their new-found status, they have found a year filled with work and good times. This is the year, for many, of subjects like chemistry, with its lively labs and terrible tests, and of looking toward a year of decision. For the junior year is one of the last steps before the important decisions must be made, and a year for preparation for the future. Increasing responsibility falls on the class, as it faces a time of independence. Yet still there are times for fun as a group in class activities and for increasing unity and friendship.

THE SOPHOMORES WAIT DAGERLY FOR LUNCH.

A year older, a year wiser, and discovering the fun and responsibilities that go with the sophomore year, the Class of 68 prepared for another memorable session. Planning the Sophomore Dance, sports activities, plays, and other extra functions that added variety, keep all students busy. As the brief year ends, they are at the midpoint of their high school career aiming for their goal, but finding that the sophomore year has indeed been one of experience and enjoyment.

FRESHMAN CLASS

Being a freshman at Arms is an experience unique and exciting. The first few days are confusing, but before long the new freshman realizes the meaning of being part of the school, and finds many opportunities open to him. He may join clubs which correspond to his interests, work on committees, go out for sports, and find new areas of interest in his studies. Indeed, the freshman year is one of discovery and fun, with these opportunities and such activities as the Freshman Reception and the Booster Day float. As the freshman takes part in these, he becomes an important part of the school.

FEATURES

Freshman Reception, Senior Play, Junior Prom . . . They march through the year leaving behind them memories traced in footprints in the mud left by a mad rush of feet after a Booster Day victory, or the tiny scratches on the floor of the gym made by those spike heels worn at the prom. This physical evidence will soon fade, but the memories formed will never be erased.

The traditional Booster Day celebration at Arms was a very special event this year . . . Starting it off, the Booster Day rally put our boys in a winning spirit and the choosing of our queen, Marilyn Giguere, added a finishing touch to their determination to make it a successful day. With enthusiasm running high, each class finished their float the following morning. Although the game was lost to Lee, the day was a rewarding one and will long be a memory to all who worked to make it a success.

WALTZING UNDER A CANOPY OF STARS

LIVING MEMORIES

ELEGANT PROCESSION

The dulcet strains of Dick Perry's Orchestra, blended with the soft glow of reflected starlight, cast a spell of enchantment over all those who drifted through the "Garden of Memories." Diligent efforts and creativeness went hand in hand in bringing to reality the heartfelt sentiments of the juniors and seniors. Their ambitions did not go unrewarded, for this magical night impressed in the hearts of many memories which cannot be erased by the passing of time.

JERK OR FRUG??

"LAUGH AT ME."

This year's Freshman Reception, held September 24, was, as usual, the first social event of the school year. As has been the tradition for many years, freshmen and new teachers were formally introduced in a receiving line, and all attending joined in the grand march. However, the evening reflected not only tradition but modern ideas as well, evidenced by popular dancing to the swinging music of the Vy-Counts. All who attended agreed that tradition and modern ideas do mix, and that the evening had been a great success.

December 23 was more than a forerunner to Christmas vacation for it was a day which brought the spirit of Christmas right into our school. The Christmas Assembly, put on by the Junior class, was a demonstration of creative talent. This satire on the modern way of celebrating Christmas was made very effective by a few short skits in which various members of the Junior Class participated. Following this, three Varsity A jackets were awarded to students who had received five Varsity letters or more, and six seniors received Silver A's. Everyone left in merry spirits.

The senior year is always filled with very special memories, and those which are cherished the most are those into which the seniors themselves put their time and effort. This is why the Christmas Prom will always be a happy recollection to every senior as well as to all others who were caught under the spell of the "Snowflake Fantasy." Combining imagination, creativity, and Christmas spirit, the class managed to produce an atmosphere of fantasy and illusion and to capture the night of December 18, turning it into a pleasant memories for everyone.

The big night had arrived — it was our senior play. Through the years we had viewed it as one of the glorious experiences of being a senior, and now it was ours. Hour upon hour of serious and wearing practice, before somewhat aggravating, took on a sudden glow as we realized what this production meant to us. It was a testimony to our class spirit — one of the projects worked on together which remain in our memories for years to come. All who were involved, from the actors to the committees backstage, felt a nervous flutter as the stage lights went on, and as the play moved on, we felt jubilant that we had been able, with competent direction, to produce a play which the audience really enjoyed. The work, the frustrations, and the fun, together, made our play one of our most exciting memories.

ORGANIZATIONS

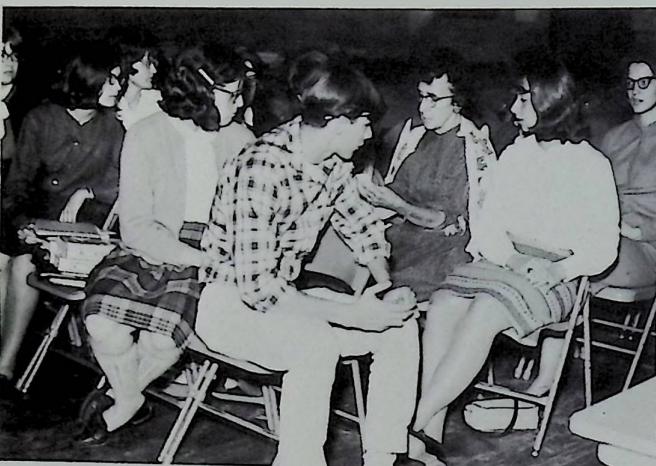

Although our footsteps may move generally in the same direction through Arms, there are places where they diverge, for we all have our own individual interests. The clubs and organizations here are for the fostering of these. Membership in them may come as a reward for achievement, as in National Honor or Varsity A, or be a matter of choice, but each reflects or supports an individual preference or concern.

SILVER "A"

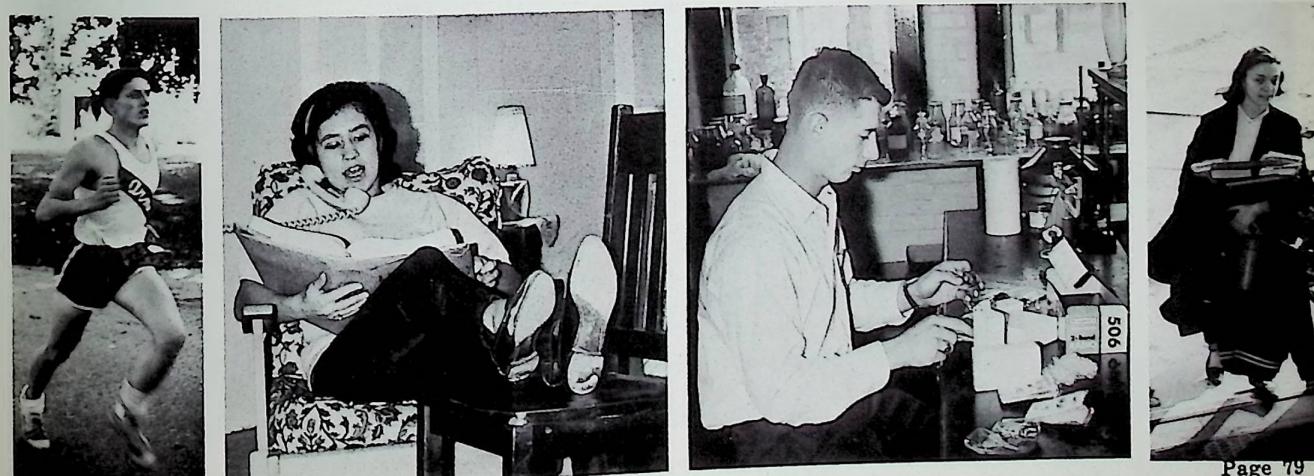

The Silver "A" is only a little pin, but to those who know its significance, it means a great deal. For it is given in recognition of loyalty, attitude, character, disposition, and cooperation, to students chosen by their schoolmates to be most outstanding in these qualities. Every year two are awarded by each class, and four by the Student Council. Thus the student with a Silver "A" gleaming on lapel or sweater shows that he has been judged to have worth not only in superficial ways, but in depth of character and integrity. The Silver "A" holder is wealthy because of his possession of these traits but he owes a debt as well—a debt to himself and to the school to maintain his high standards.

The Varsity "A" Club is the cream of the "sports world" at Arms. Here our top boy and girl athletes have a chance to increase their services to the school. Not only do they play on our athletic teams, but they also find time for various projects such as their annual car wash and selling refreshments at basketball games.

For the Arms Academy athlete the ultimate in recognition comes with earning a Varsity blazer. These are given through the Varsity "A" Club to students who have received five varsity letters. Even though all members do not achieve this goal, the Varsity "A" Club is recognized for its many services performed for the school.

FIRST ROW: C. McCloud, P. Moseley, L. Roberts, N. Shippee, B. Ryan. SECOND ROW: W. Blassberg, M. Sheridan, R. Burnap, S. Wright, M. Jones.

Homeroom is strangely quiet; what has happened? It's the once-a-month quiet that comes when the Sentinel is passed out to the students of Arms. The members of the staff attempt, through their observations and comments, to present an up-to-date report of the events that are taking place. From editorials on current issues to coverage on features to clever remarks in the "bits and pieces" column, the Sentinel entertains and informs while providing valuable experience in journalism for its members.

An understanding of the French culture, a concept not easily accessible in the classroom, is provided by the French Club. Through this organization the French student is able to grasp the background of the language he is studying. The members of the club work in projects of singular interest to students of the French language, such as the study of various important cities of France. They also enjoy projects connected with the entire student body, as, for instance, the entrance of a float in the Booster Day parade. This year the club decided to "send" Mary Jones and Lauren Autio abroad. Each month they are followed by the club as they encounter hilarious and exciting adventures.

PHYLLIS MOSELEY, CAROL MCLOUD, AND CARL BYRON REHEARSE WITH MR. SMITHERS FOR DISTRICT CHORUS TRY-OUTS.

Teenagers, as a rule, enjoy music—it seems that they are always singing the latest hit song or whistling a tune. The Arms Academy Chorus channels this musical tendency and puts it into organized effort. Thus, the pure enjoyment of music is coupled with the fun of singing in a group, and harmonious results are produced. Under the direction of Mr. Smithers, the chorus sings at the Christmas assembly, in the annual spring concert, and at Class Day and Graduation. The bulk of its activity, though, is in its meetings twice weekly, which provide carefree minutes in the school day.

For those sincerely interested in art, a class is not enough to satisfy all the curiosity they have. Besides the instruction obtained in class, discussion and observation are necessary for the acquiring of an understanding of art's many forms. The Arms Academy Art Club, directed by Mr. John Shea, takes trips to art museums and becomes acquainted with great art. Thus its members widen their knowledge and receive incentive from admiration of others' achievements, while seeking to develop their own talent.

DEBATE CLUB

H. Bandeneau, M. Sheridan, Mr. Levy, B. Thane, L. Roberts, C. McCloud, P. Moseley.

To many people, the Debate Club might seem to be a rather dull and extremely literary group. However, as the saying goes, you can't judge a book by its cover, and new members of the club find, instead of the bookish atmosphere they had expected, a group of fun-loving individuals. For example, who could forget those silly fish fries at Ho-Jo's or the rides home with everyone joking? There is a lot more to debating at Arms than the important aspects of developing speaking skill and clear thinking. There is also friendly competition, fellowship, and fun.

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION IS A SERIOUS TOPIC!

The Arms Student is the "annual report" of the school, and as spokesmen in this report, we, the members of the yearbook staff, have spent many hours of hard work. Primarily, the book should be one of memories; thus we have tried to capture the essence of school life in its pages. Doing this, however, has involved the cooperation of many willing to give time to selling ads, writing copy, arranging for photography, creating artistic designs, and doing layout. It also involves headaches and rushing, for there are deadlines to meet and a budget to balance. Amid this work and worry we have been able to enjoy our "yearbook parties" at the homes of members, doing layout while eating potato chips or pizza and discussing the latest goings-on. We have also developed useful skills in planning and writing, and have gained experience in teamwork. But most important, we have realized anew that Arms is the people that make it up, with their group activities and their individual personalities—a unit composed of many parts.

One of the less-recognized but most interesting sports at Arms, track is fascinating to spectators and to those who know from experience the work that goes into the improvement of a score by an inch, or a few seconds. The 1965 trackmen, under the careful guidance of Coach Hale and the leadership of co-captains Dave Baker and John McCloud, had a satisfactory season, showing their unyielding desire to succeed in many notable meets.

The 1965 softball team reached the top of the ladder to success as they beat their arch-rival, Frontier, for the first time in 7 years. The girls concluded a rewarding softball season with an overnight banquet, where their victory was happily celebrated. We will long remember the 1965 softball team as those who, through their skill and determination, finally conquered Frontier.

Not content to let the softball team outdo them, this year's field hockey team highlighted their season with a double victory over their arch-rival, Frontier, winning also the majority of their other games. Put in vicinity of band and observe results! These are, essentially, what make up a twirler—vitality, spirit, rhythm, and creativity. The right combination produces a team able to provide good entertainment and spark school spirit.

During this year's season, five new members were added to the squad, bringing the total to sixteen. Such a large group could have proven difficult to work with, but with enthusiasm and plenty of practice, the girls worked simple routines into effective half time demonstrations. Fans appreciated the variety which they added to games.

The girls' victorious season was a product of hard effort and winning spirit. The Junior Varsity team had a nearly perfect season, winning both games against their rival Frontier, and losing only one game. Playing as a team was a major factor in their winning streak. Varsity basketball provided many an exciting afternoon as the girls exhibited their skill in many victories. Both teams used the assets of coaching and skill to good advantage in the 1965-66 basketball season.

VARSITY CHEERING

The cheerleader: "Dedication, spirit, the will to learn, and hard work." The Arms Academy cheerleaders may not be the epitome of perfection, but they certainly try hard to live up to these ideals. Cheering is an important part of their lives, as the task of leading school spirit should be. So they give it every ounce of dedication they've got. As for spirit, even when the score lags they're able to manage a smile and a peppy cheer. The combination of football and basketball cheers makes a long list. But the will to learn is always there. Food sales, pep rallies, poster making, hard practices, and fun are all part of the Arms Academy cheerleader.

ADVERTISEMENTS

The final section of our yearbook is dedicated to the loyal supporters who have purchased ads so that we would have the necessary funds to pay for our publication. They realize how important our yearbook is to us, and we, in turn, are happy that we have an effective means through which they can advertise. Combined, we are able to publish a book which is a reminder of the many footsteps we left at Arms.

MR. CRIPPS GIVES SOME HELPFUL POINTERS TO THE ANXIOUS TEAM.

DURING THE HALF, A COOL DRINK IS ALL THAT IS NEEDED TO REVIVE THE FOOTBALL TEAM.

HERE COMES ANOTHER RUN FOR ARMS.

A LITTLE WARMUP BEFORE THE IMPORTANT FIELD HOCKEY GAME.

THE CHEERLEADERS HAVE A LITTLE BOYISH ACTION AT THE BOOSTER DAY RALLY.
